95 WATER STREET

Constructed in 1915 and officially opened in the spring of 1916, this striking structure was originally known as The Commercial Cable Company Building. Officially opened in the spring of 1916, it originally served as a vital hub for Newfoundland's telecommunications. At a time when telegraph lines were the lifeline for long-distance communication, this building stood tall and proud as one of the main telegraph offices in the region. However, as technology advanced and the demand for telegraph services dwindled, the building ceased operations in 1961.

Following its closure, 95 Water Street took on a new chapter in its life when it was sold to John C. Doyle, an American businessman with a vision for developing iron ore resources in western Labrador. Despite his controversial tenure marked by legal battles, Doyle left an indelible mark on Newfoundland's industrial landscape, renaming the building Javelin House during his ownership. The story didn't end there; the Christian Brothers later acquired the property, transforming it into the Brother T.I. Murphy Centre, a trade school that aimed to help those who had struggled to complete high school. This shift in purpose highlighted the building's enduring legacy in the community.

In 1987, the importance of 95 Water Street was officially recognized when it was designated a registered heritage structure. This two-storey classical revival masterpiece, designed by the esteemed architect William F. Butler, stands out among the remains of downtown St. John's architecture. Constructed from a mix of concrete, stone, steel, and brick, it boasts fireproof qualities that many of its contemporaries do not share. The building is a stunning example of Classical Revival style, with its flat roof, ornamental eaves, and impressive pilasters giving it a distinguished presence. Notable original features, such as arched windows and intricate decorative stonework, showcase the craftsmanship of the time and offer a window into the past.

Today, 95 Water Street remains a highly distinguishable landmark, one of the few classical buildings still standing in the heart of the city.

RAYMONDS LEGACY

Raymonds was a culinary gem nestled in the heart of St. John's at 95 Water Street. Operated by the talented duo of chef Jeremy Charles and sommelier Jeremy Bonia, this high-end fine dining restaurant quickly became a beacon for food enthusiasts across Canada. From its opening in 2011, Raymonds was celebrated not only for its exquisite dishes but also for its commitment to elevating Newfoundland cuisine. With locally sourced seafood and wild game as the stars of the menu, every meal was a tribute to the bountiful larder right at their doorstep. It's no surprise that EnRoute magazine named Raymonds Canada's Best New Restaurant just a year after its inception, setting the stage for its rapid rise to prominence.

Emphasizing a "farm-to-table" or "sea-to-table" philosophy, Raymonds showcased the best of Atlantic Canada, featuring authentic dishes that highlighted the region's rich culinary heritage. Diners could savor delicacies like Atlantic cod, scallops, moose, and berries, all masterfully prepared by Chef Charles. His approach to cooking is rooted in pride of place - each dish sophisticated yet honoring the traditional flavors of Newfoundland. The dedication to quality and authenticity earned Raymonds its esteemed spot on "Canada's 100 Best Restaurants" list each year, reaching an impressive number four ranking in 2015.

The restaurant's impressive reputation extended beyond just food; Bonia's expertise in wine paired perfectly with the culinary creations. Raymonds received the Wine Spectator's Best Award of Excellence in 2012 - a remarkable feat for a restaurant outside of Canada's major urban centers. The accolades kept coming, including the title of #1 Restaurant in Canada from Vacay.ca in both 2014 and 2015, and the recognition of Celeste Mah as Canada's Best Pastry Chef in 2019. Dining at Raymonds was not merely a meal; it was an unforgettable experience, offering a unique blend of rustic Atlantic Canadian flavors and innovative haute cuisine techniques.

In every sense, Raymonds embodied the culinary spirit of Newfoundland and Labrador. With its unwavering commitment to sustainability, local sourcing, and fostering relationships with independent purveyors, it redefined what fine dining could mean in Canada's easterly city. The restaurant was more than a place to eat; it was a celebration of place, taste, and tradition. For those seeking a culinary adventure, Raymonds stood as a must-visit destination, inviting guests to indulge in a truly exceptional dining experience right in the heart of downtown St. John's.

LATIN AMERICA

Latin America is comprised of romance-speaking countries, primarily Spanish and Portuguese, that beautifully intertwine rich cultural and linguistic connections across its diverse landscape. Stretching from Mexico, through Central America, down to South America, and into the islands of the Caribbean, this captivating region is defined more by the deep connections among its people, tied together by a shared history and collective identity than strict geographical borders.

Latin America is often classified as a "developing" or "emerging" region, with Brazil, Mexico, and Argentina standing out as its largest economies, each contributing to the area's dynamic growth and evolution. But before the Europeans arrived in the 15th century, this land was already rich with remarkable civilizations like the Maya, Aztecs, and Incas. These ancient cultures laid the groundwork for the vibrant societies we see today, leaving behind an indelible legacy that continues to shape the region's identity.

The impact of colonialism by Spain and Portugal was profound, resulting in a unique blend of influences that can be seen in everything from the rhythm of its music to the pages of its literature, the strokes of its artistic traditions, and, of course, the incredible flavors of its cuisine. Today, Latin America is a beautiful mosaic of demographics, reflecting centuries of interactions among Europeans, indigenous peoples, and Africans. This rich confluence has given rise to a vibrant population characterized by a high proportion of mixed-race individuals, who embody the region's unique and multifaceted heritage.

Steeped in a delightful mix of European, indigenous, and African cultures, Latin America radiates warmth and creativity, inviting everyone to delve into its endless charms. Whether you're drawn in by the lively festivals, the breathtaking landscapes, or the rich history, there's always something new to discover and celebrate in this remarkable part of the world.

OPEN DOOR POLICY

Open communication is the cornerstone of a thriving workplace. We encourage all our staff to bring forward their questions, innovative ideas, or any concerns they may have. We understand that the best ideas often come from those who are on the front lines, interacting with our guests and experiencing the daily challenges that arise. At Barrio Legado, we appreciate those who are curious and unafraid to ask questions. Seeking knowledge is a powerful catalyst for improvement, and we celebrate those who take that initiative.

When individuals step forward with their ideas, they contribute to the collective goals and help shape the future of the restaurant. We also understand that concerns or issues can only be addressed if they are brought to our attention. We are committed to creating a safe space for feedback, where everyone feels empowered to voice their thoughts. This is not just about problem-solving; it's about collectively striving towards a shared goal: providing our guests with the best possible experience.

At 98296 Newfoundland and Labrador Ltd o/a Barrio Legado, all employment decisions are based solely on business needs, job requirements, and individual qualifications. We aim to cultivate a workplace that not only promotes diversity but also champions a culture of fairness and respect for everyone.

PROBATIONARY PERIOD

After going through the hiring process, we see significant potential in your ability to collaborate effectively with our team and contribute to the growth of our organization. As part of our commitment to ensuring a successful partnership, a 90-day probation period will be implemented in accordance with Newfoundland and Labrador labour law. This period will provide both parties with the opportunity to assess whether this role is the perfect fit for you. We believe that open communication is key during this time, and we encourage you to share your thoughts and feedback. In the event that either party feels that the fit isn't quite right, we will handle the situation with professionalism and understanding, allowing both of us to move forward without any bias. Should you choose to part ways, we kindly request that you provide us with one week notice to ensure a smooth transition and allow us to fill your role effectively.

CONFLICT OF INTEREST

At Barrio Legado, we are committed to maintaining the highest ethical standards in our work environment. It is imperative that every employee prioritizes the best interests of the organization, ensuring that personal interests do not interfere with professional responsibilities. Our Conflict of Interest Policy is designed to address potential conflicts openly, fairly, and consistently, fostering an atmosphere of trust and integrity.

To uphold these standards, employees are required to disclose any real or perceived conflicts of interest. This includes situations such as owning or working for a competing business, which could compromise an employee's ability to act in the best interest of Barrio Legado. Additionally, it is vital that company information remains confidential and is not used for personal gain. We recognize that many employees may have multiple sources of income; however, it is essential to be mindful of how this might impact one's primary role at Barrio Legado. Any alternative employment should be disclosed during the onboarding process, and we encourage employees to discuss potential secondary employment with their managers to ensure there are no conflicts of interest.

Personal relationships should not influence business decisions. This means being cautious about hiring family members or showing favoritism towards specific vendors. Maintaining professionalism in all interactions is crucial for the health of our organizational culture. When it comes to accepting gifts, favors, or entertainment from suppliers or contractors, employees must seek approval from their manager beforehand to avoid any appearance of impropriety. By adhering to these guidelines, we can work together to foster a professional environment. We appreciate your cooperation and commitment to ethical practices.

COMMUNICATION BOARD

It is important that all staff to view the communication board on the wall in the staff area at the beginning of every shift. To help you stay informed and engaged throughout the day, we use this board to relay important daily information and to keep everyone aligned about promotions, features, announcements, reservation details, and our company goals.

WORK WEEK

Our work week runs from Monday to Sunday, ensuring that administrative tasks can be addressed promptly after the week's conclusion, allowing us to maintain efficiency and deliver exceptional service without delay.

REPORTING TO WORK

CLOCKING IN/OUT

As part of our commitment to maintaining an efficient and organized workplace, we ask that all staff members be prepared to start their shifts at least 5 minutes before their scheduled start time. This practice ensures that you are in uniform, equipped with all necessary tools, and have your personal belongings stored away prior to clocking in. As part of our commitment to maintaining accurate timekeeping, it is essential that staff members clock out before attending to personal items or preparing to leave for the day. We utilize the Push Operations App for tracking work hours, and it is each employee's responsibility to clock in and out for every shift. If you find yourself in a situation where you've forgotten to clock in or out, please inform your manager or supervisor as soon as possible so that we can make the necessary adjustments. Timely communication is key to ensuring that everyone is accurately compensated for their hours worked. We also encourage staff members to regularly review their hours worked against their timesheets and pay. If you notice any discrepancies or have questions regarding your hours, please do not hesitate to reach out to your manager.

SCHEDULE

Schedules are created on a weekly basis to meet the demands and needs of the restaurant. The schedule is posted weekly, no later than Thursday evening for the following week, through the Push Operations App.

AVAILABILITY

We ask all staff members to take an active role in managing their availability through the Push Operations App. It is important to remember that the availability you provide should reflect your other commitments rather than personal shift preferences. This approach helps us create a balanced schedule that meets the operational needs of our team while respecting each individual's time. Should any staff member fail to update their availability in a timely manner, they will be responsible for finding coverage for any shifts they are scheduled for.

TIME OFF REQUESTS AND VACATION TIME

At Barrio Legado, we understand the importance of taking time off to recharge and maintain a healthy work-life balance. To streamline the process of submitting time off and vacation requests, we kindly ask that all requests be made through the Push Operations App. This system is designed to ensure that we can efficiently manage schedules while accommodating your needs to the best of our ability.

We strive to accommodate all requests; however, there may be occasions when we need to decline certain requests based on operational requirements. To help us better support your needs and plan accordingly, please ensure that all time off requests are submitted by the Monday of the previous week. For vacation requests, we ask for a minimum notice period of two weeks. The more advance notice you can provide, the easier it will be for management to approve your request and make the necessary arrangements to cover your responsibilities during your absence. Should you have any questions or concerns about the request process or if you need assistance with any specific situation, please do not hesitate to reach out to your Manager.

ATTENDANCE

At Barrio Legado, we value punctuality and reliability as key components of our operational success. As an essential member of our team, you are expected to report to work on time for your scheduled shifts. We understand that life can sometimes present unexpected challenges, and if you find yourself running late, we kindly ask that you reach out to the manager on duty as soon as possible. Open communication in these situations is crucial, as it allows us to make necessary adjustments and maintain our high standards of service. We maintain a zero-tolerance policy for no-shows, as they can significantly impact the overall operations of our establishment. Each case of tardiness or absence will be reviewed individually, and we take these matters seriously. Please note that in certain circumstances, such as emergencies, documentation may be required to support your absence. Our commitment to excellent service starts with a dependable team, and we appreciate your efforts in maintaining this standard.

CALLING IN SICK

If you are feeling unwell, we kindly ask that you stay home to prioritize your health. Please reach out to your manager on duty at least three hours before your shift to inform them of your absence, allowing us ample time to make necessary arrangements. For this situation, we appreciate your cooperation in communicating directly rather than leaving a voicemail, email, or text message.

ON CALL SHIFTS

At Barrio Legado, we strive to ensure smooth operations while accommodating the varying needs of the restaurant. As part of this effort, employees may be scheduled for on-call shifts, which can fluctuate based on demand and organizational requirements. These shifts will be organized through our scheduling platform, Push Operations, where you can easily view your assignments. However, please note that the specific start and end times of your on-call shifts will be determined by the Manager on Duty, who will make decisions based on real-time business needs. It is your responsibility to proactively reach out to the Manager on Duty at your on call time to confirm whether your presence is needed that day. If the manager assesses that your services are not required, you will not be expected to report to work, providing you with the flexibility to manage your time effectively.

SWITCHING SHIFTS

Please remember that all shift changes must be submitted through the Push Operations App. You will remain responsible for your shift until the change has been approved by a manager.

STATUTORY HOLIDAYS

Newfoundland has six public holidays:

- | | |
|-------------------|--------------------|
| 1. New Year's Day | 4. Labour Day |
| 2. Good Friday | 5. Remembrance Day |
| 3. Canada Day | 6. Christmas Day |

At Barrio Legado, we value the importance of holiday time and understand that our business needs may vary throughout the year. As such, we reserve the right to determine whether we remain open or closed during statutory holidays based on our operational requirements. Should we decide to stay open on a public holiday, employees who are scheduled to work will be expected to fulfill their shifts and will receive premium pay at a rate of 2x their regular hourly wage for the hours they complete.

For employees who do not work on a paid public holiday, employees will receive a regular day's pay, provided they have been employed with us for at least 30 days and have completed their scheduled shifts both prior to and following the holiday. To accurately determine the pay for this day, we calculate the employee's average daily earnings by multiplying their hourly rate by the average number of hours worked each day over the three weeks leading up to the holiday. In situations where an employee works fewer hours on a paid public holiday than they would typically be scheduled for, employees will receive their regular pay for the actual hours worked, in addition to a regular day's pay.

FLEXIBILITY OF HOURS

The hospitality industry thrives on the strength of a flexible and adaptable team, and we truly value your cooperation in this regard. We appreciate your readiness to embrace various responsibilities, which may include working adjusted hours as needed, assisting colleagues in different roles when requested, and being available during holidays and weekends. Additionally, there may be times when you will be asked to take on tasks that, while not part of your usual routine, contribute to the overall maintenance and success of our establishment.

ADVERSE WEATHER CONDITIONS

In the event of adverse weather conditions, our management team will promptly communicate any changes to operating hours and whether the business will be open or closed. If you have any questions about whether you should report to work, please don't hesitate to reach out to your manager. We prioritize the safety of our staff and strive to make timely decisions during these situations.

COMPENSATION AND BENEFITS

PAY PERIOD

All employees will receive their pay via direct deposit every Thursday.

PAYROLL DEDUCTIONS

In accordance with legal requirements, Barrio Legado makes specific deductions from each employee's compensation. These deductions include applicable federal, provincial, and local income taxes, as well as contributions to the Canada Pension Plan and Employment Insurance.

OVERTIME

Overtime compensation is provided for employees who work beyond the standard 40-hour workweek, which spans from Monday to Sunday. Employees will receive at least 1.5 times the minimum wage for each hour worked over 40 hours. Please note that if employees choose to switch shifts, overtime pay will not be applicable for any hours worked in excess of 40 as a result of these changes.

MINIMUM HOURS WORKED

In accordance with the Labour Standards Act, if an employee reports for any shift of 3 hours or more and it is cancelled, they must receive payment for at least 3 hours. An employee must work at least 3 hours or pay the employee for an unworked portion of the 3 hours at the minimum wage rate or minimum wage overtime rate, whichever is appropriate. If an employee is scheduled for 2 hours, an employee must be paid for 2 hours, in accordance with the Labour Standards Act.

EXCESS HOURS OF WORK

Except in the case of an emergency that constitutes an imminent hazard to life or property, an employer shall permit, and an employee shall take no less than 8 hours off work in each unbroken 24-hour period of employment. These 8 hours are in addition to the breaks required during the workday. Due to the nature of the business, employees may be required to work more than 8 hours in a day but never in excess of 12 hours.

BREAKS

Staff that work 5 hours or more consecutively are entitled to a 30-minute unpaid break. Breaks are to be arranged with your Manager on Duty and are not to be taken during peak service hours. Employees will be relieved of all active responsibilities and restrictions during this time. Please clock out and ensure your uniform is covered. Staff are not permitted to order food within the first 3 hours of their shift and staff must be on break to consume a meal.

STAFF DISCOUNTS

Staff can purchase a regular priced meal with a discount of 50% to be consumed during their break period. Staff joining us on their day off will receive 20% off food for themselves and a guest.

TIPS, GRATUITY, AND TIPOUT

Gratuities and tips play a part in enhancing the earnings of our service team, serving as both motivation and incentive for our employees to deliver an exceptional experience to our guests. All discussions regarding tips are to remain private and not take place on the floor or within earshot of our guests.

All members of the service team will tip out a percentage of their net sales to the house. This house tipout will be distributed weekly to kitchen staff, hosts, and support staff based on the number of hours they worked.

Server Tipout = 4% Net Sales To The House and 2% Net Sales To The Bar

Bartender Tipout = 4% Net Sales To The House

WORKPLACE POLICIES

ANSWERING THE PHONE

Answering the phone is a crucial aspect of our service. There are individuals on the other end who are eager to support us and spend their money in our restaurant. We encourage all team members to greet callers warmly with: 'Good Afternoon/Evening, Barrio Legado. This is [Your First Name], how may I assist you today?' If you're unsure about the answer to their question, please feel free to ask if you can place them on hold while you connect them with the right person who can assist further.

SMOKING

Smoke breaks are granted at the discretion of the Manager on Duty and are to be taken only when business levels allow. We kindly remind all staff that smoking is strictly limited to off-premises locations, and it is essential to cover your uniform while doing so. Upon returning, please take a moment to wash your hands and freshen your breath, as this reflects our commitment to hygiene and guest experience. While we understand the importance of personal breaks, it is crucial to remember that smoking should never interfere with our primary focus: exceptional guest service. To maintain this, we ask that smoke breaks be kept to a minimum and should not result in any neglect of our guests' needs. When you do smoke, please ensure you are at least 9 meters away from any entrance and thoroughly extinguish your cigarette before re-entering the building. We also request that you dispose of cigarette butts responsibly, avoiding littering near our premises, entrances, or in the parking lot.

CELL PHONES

Cell phone usage is prohibited while working on the floor or on the line. It is important that our guests never see you using your phone, as this can detract from their experience and create the impression that we are not fully dedicated to their needs. Cell phone use while working may also lead to potential food safety concerns. If you find yourself in a situation where it's necessary to have your phone on you, please don't hesitate to discuss this with management. We understand that there may be special circumstances or urgent matters that require your attention, and we are here to support you in finding a solution that ensures both your responsibilities and our guests' experiences are prioritized.

Managers and supervisors are permitted to use their cell phones strictly for work-related purposes, allowing them to communicate effectively and perform their duties efficiently. However, we ask that all team members remain focused on their roles during their shifts. Any staff member observed using their phone while neglecting their responsibilities may face disciplinary action, as it is crucial for us to uphold the standards we set for both ourselves and the experience we offer to our valued guests.

EARPHONES/HEADPHONES

At Barrio Legado, we prioritize effective communication and safety in the workplace. To support these goals, we have a policy that prohibits the use of headphones or earphones while working. While we understand that music or podcasts can enhance personal focus for some individuals, it is important to recognize the potential challenges this practice can create in a collaborative workplace. Wearing headphones or earphones can lead to misunderstandings and missed messages, which can have serious implications for our workflow. When employees are unable to hear verbal cues or updates, it can result in errors and disrupt the overall efficiency of our operations. Additionally, the use of headphones or earphones can pose safety concerns. In a bustling workplace, it is crucial that everyone is aware of their surroundings, especially when alarms or urgent announcements are made. By removing distractions such as audio devices, we can create a safer environment where all staff members can respond promptly to critical situations.

STAFF BELONGINGS

We kindly ask that all staff belongings be stored in the designated areas downstairs to maintain a professional environment. Please refrain from placing personal items in service areas or in view of our guests, such as the bar, server station, or host stand. The coat check at the host stand is reserved exclusively for guests. We have provided lockers for your convenience to securely store your belongings. At the end of your shift, please remember to take your items home with you. Any items left behind will be placed in the Lost & Found bin.

LOST OR STOLEN PROPERTY

As an employee, it is your responsibility to take reasonable precautions to safeguard your belongings while at work. We encourage you to be mindful of your personal items and to consider leaving valuable possessions at home. Unfortunately, Barrio Legado cannot accept responsibility for any lost or stolen property, so protecting your belongings is crucial.

In the unfortunate event that you experience theft, we urge you to report it to the Management Team immediately. Prompt reporting allows us to take necessary actions and ensure the safety and security of our workplace. Additionally, we recommend that you refrain from bringing in or storing documents containing personal information, as this is another way to protect your privacy and security.

For those moments when an item is unintentionally left behind, we have implemented a lost and found system. A designated bin is available in coat check at the host stand for any belongings found on the premises. If you discover an item that belongs to a guest, please notify your manager so that it can be properly logged and placed in the bin. We kindly remind everyone that any items not claimed after one month will be donated, ensuring that they find a new home rather than being lost indefinitely.

RINGING IN PRODUCT

To ensure accuracy and minimize any potential for errors, we kindly ask that all products are entered into the POS system before being taken from the bar or kitchen. Please note that food and drinks will only be prepared once an item has been recorded and the corresponding chit has been printed.

ALCOHOL SERVICE

At Barrio Legado, we take the responsible service of alcoholic beverages seriously and adhere strictly to all applicable laws and regulations. We are committed to creating a safe and enjoyable environment for all our guests. As part of this commitment, we do not serve alcoholic products to minors or to individuals who appear to be intoxicated. It's important to note that both our company and our bartenders/servers can face legal consequences, including charges and fines, if we are found in violation of these laws.

Recognizing signs of intoxication is essential for ensuring the safety and well-being of all patrons. Some common indicators include loud or overly friendly behavior, slurred speech, drowsiness, and complaints about drink strength or pricing. Other signs might be careless financial behavior, such as buying drinks for strangers, difficulty maintaining physical stability, or engaging in disruptive behavior towards other guests.

We also adhere to regulated hours for serving alcohol, ensuring that beverages are only available during designated times: from 9 AM to 2 AM Monday through Wednesday, and from 9 AM to 3 AM Thursday through Sunday. Furthermore, in compliance with legal guidelines, we prohibit the sale or "lending" of alcoholic beverages for off-premises consumption after hours.

CHECKLISTS AND DEPARTMENT GUIDELINES

As an employee, it is essential to understand that part of our commitment to maintaining a productive and efficient work environment involves adhering to the various checklists relevant to our department. These checklists serve as a valuable tool, ensuring that all tasks are completed systematically and nothing falls through the cracks. Daily open, closing, and ongoing duties are critical to the smooth operation of our workplace. Each staff member is entrusted with specific responsibilities that contribute to our overall success. It is imperative that these tasks are completed consistently and punctually by the designated personnel. Additionally, our weekly cleaning checklists serve to enhance our workspace, promoting a healthy and inviting atmosphere for both employees and clients. Participation in these routines is not just encouraged; it is mandatory, as it reflects our collective commitment to maintaining high standards.

EMPLOYEE CONDUCT

CODE OF CONDUCT

At Barrio Legado, we take pride in fostering an environment of mutual respect and courtesy among both our guests and fellow team members. As an integral part of our team, each employee holds a vital responsibility to uphold our high standards of service. This commitment is not just about adhering to policies; it is about embodying the values that make our establishment a welcoming and enjoyable place for everyone. We believe that courteous interactions and respectful service create a positive atmosphere that enhances the experience for our guests and strengthens our teamwork.

To maintain this standard, we have established a Code of Conduct that outlines the behaviors and practices expected of all employees. It is essential to remember that any violations of this Code can lead to disciplinary action. We take these infractions seriously because they can undermine the team's morale and the quality of service we provide.

Employees are expected to avoid any of the following infractions:

- Use of profane or abusive language
- Willful wasting of company time or supplies
- Not carrying out a manager's instruction or direct insubordination
- Smoking on premises
- Failure to abide by work schedule
- Failure to abide by clock in/out procedures
- Repeated cash handling errors
- Repeated guest complaints/providing inadequate service to our guests
- Excessive absenteeism, excessive lateness, or abuse of sick time
- Unauthorized use of company equipment
- Reporting to work out of uniform or improperly groomed
- Failure to work as a team/failure to have an amicable relationship with other staff

We encourage open communication about any challenges you may face in meeting these expectations. Our management team is here to support you in your role and help you navigate any issues that may arise.

EMPLOYEE BEHAVIOUR

At Barrio Legado, we encourage all employees to uphold our core values through their conduct. This includes, but is not limited to, maintaining professionalism in discussions with guests and colleagues, adhering to legal and ethical standards, refraining from the consumption of alcohol or drugs while on duty, and demonstrating respect and integrity in the workplace. Any behaviors such as insubordination, providing false information, misrepresenting work hours, harassment, or any form of abusive conduct are not acceptable and may lead to disciplinary action, which could include termination.

TEAMWORK

In the fast-paced environment of the restaurant industry, teamwork is a fundamental necessity for ensuring operations run smoothly and efficiently. Our success depends on our ability to work together seamlessly, anticipating each other's needs and stepping in to help when necessary. The phrase "That is not my job" has no place in the hospitality industry. In our restaurant, we understand that flexibility and cooperation are key to overcoming the daily challenges we face. Each team member should be prepared to take on any reasonable task that contributes to a more efficient service.

COMMUNICATION

At Barrio Legado, we are dedicated to the belief that our brand's success is built on the relationships we nurture with those around us. Every interaction - whether with our guests, teammates, suppliers, or the wider community - offers us a valuable opportunity to cultivate goodwill and mutual respect. By prioritizing courtesy and respect in all our engagements, we strive to create an environment where everyone feels valued and connected. We are committed to conveying our messages with civility and professionalism.

SUBSTANCE ABUSE, DRUGS, AND ALCOHOL

To maintain a secure and productive work environment, it is essential that all staff members arrive at work in a condition conducive to performing their duties effectively. Therefore, we have implemented a clear policy regarding the use of alcohol, narcotics, and other substances. Employees are strictly prohibited from entering or remaining in the workplace if their ability to work is impaired, as this could pose significant risks to themselves and their colleagues.

Our commitment to a safe workplace means that any employee found under the influence of alcohol or illegal drugs while on duty may face disciplinary action. In instances where a Manager or Supervisor assesses that a worker is impaired, that individual will be sent home for the remainder of their shift. This measure is not only in place to protect the individual but also to ensure the safety of the entire team. It is crucial that all employees recognize their responsibility in this regard and make informed decisions about their fitness for duty, particularly when it comes to the effects of both prescription and non-prescription medications.

PERFORMANCE

At Barrio Legado, we are committed to setting clear and achievable goals and objectives for each team member. We strive to ensure that these are thoroughly communicated and mutually agreed upon when joining our organization, as well as whenever policies and procedures evolve. The Manager will outline specific goals and objectives, along with the expected behaviors that align with and support the mission and vision of Barrio Legado.

MEETINGS

At Barrio Legado, we prioritize continuous staff education and development through regular meetings, which serve essential purposes, including policy updates, discussions on seasonal changes, and team building. Attendance is mandatory for these meetings, and punctuality is vital. Employees are required to clock in and out for these sessions and will receive compensation for their time unless alternative arrangements are made with management. We believe that these meetings are more than just a routine obligation; they are an invaluable opportunity for each team member to contribute their insights and suggestions, which are crucial for enhancing our workplace and operations. In addition to standard meetings, we will occasionally schedule special training sessions designed to support your professional growth. To reinforce the information being shared, we may conduct spontaneous quizzes and tests during our training sessions. It is the responsibility of each employee to engage actively with the material presented and to invest time in studying and learning.

PRODUCT KNOWLEDGE

At the heart of our company philosophy is the belief that "knowledge is power." We recognize that an informed team is essential to delivering an exceptional experience to our guests. As ambassadors of the products we offer, our team carries the responsibility of understanding the nuances of our menu items. This includes having a comprehensive knowledge of ingredients, portion sizes, preparation methods, and potential allergens. When guests feel confident that we understand their needs and preferences, they are more likely to engage fully with our products and services.

SOLICITATION

To maintain this positive atmosphere, we have instituted a policy that prohibits solicitation and distribution of literature by individuals who are not employed by our organization. Additionally, our employees are asked to refrain from similar activities during work hours. This includes the solicitation of funds or goods for community, religious, political, or charitable organizations, as well as the sale of goods or services that fall outside the scope of our business. Activities such as circulating petitions or soliciting memberships, fees, or dues also fall under this policy. Furthermore, the posting of written solicitations on company bulletin boards and email solicitations are not permitted. If you have a message that you believe would be of interest to your colleagues, we encourage you to share it with management. Submissions will be reviewed for approval to ensure that they align with our company values and maintain our workplace's focus.

PERSONAL APPEARANCE

Dress, grooming, and personal cleanliness standards contribute to the morale of all employees and affect the business image that Barrio Legado presents to its guests. The management team of Barrio Legado reserves the right to send an employee home who is not appropriately dressed or groomed for their shift. In an event that an employee has arrived to work without abiding by the dress code and is sent home, said employee will not be compensated. In the event of repeated dress code violation, disciplinary action will follow.

Additionally, the application of scents, makeup, and jewelry should be done in a tasteful and appropriate manner. We encourage the use of light fragrances, as stronger scents may overshadow the delicate aromas of fine wines. Please ensure that nails are kept neat and trimmed, and facial hair is well-groomed and tidy. Additionally, we ask that hair is clean, combed, and styled in a neat manner. If you have any questions or uncertainties regarding what is considered suitable, please feel free to consult with your management team.

SECURITY & TECHNOLOGY

STAFF AREAS

Employees are to refrain from entering staff areas when they are off duty. Employees visiting as guests are welcome to access designated areas available to guests only.

VISITORS AT WORK

At Barrio Legado, we take great pride in cultivating a warm and hospitable environment for all our guests. We understand that sharing experiences with friends and family enhances the joy of visiting our venues, and we wholeheartedly encourage you to bring your loved ones along. To ensure a smooth and enjoyable visit for everyone, we kindly ask that all guests enter through the main entrance of our establishment. For the safety and well-being of our staff, guests, and the overall environment, access to restricted areas is limited. Should a visitor need to provide a service or require entry to a restricted area, it is important to notify a manager.

In our commitment to upholding safety, any individual who does not have authorized access will unfortunately be denied entry and may be escorted off the property if necessary. If someone arrives to meet with a member of our management or ownership team, we ask that you please seat the guest in the dining area and promptly inform the intended individual of their arrival.

SOCIAL MEDIA

Barrio Legado recognizes that social media platforms have become integral to personal and professional communication, allowing staff members to connect with friends, family, teammates, and a broader audience. Platforms such as Facebook, LinkedIn, Twitter, Instagram, and TikTok not only facilitate the sharing of content but also foster engagement in social networking, which is increasingly vital in today's digital landscape. We acknowledge and support our employees' participation in these platforms as a means of exchanging ideas and perspectives.

However, it is essential for employees to understand that communication on social media operates differently than traditional forms of interaction. The potential for expansive reach means that messages can quickly become widely circulated, often beyond the intended audience. Therefore, employees of Barrio Legado are reminded that they bear individual responsibility for their online presence and the content they choose to share. Regardless of an employee's belief that their comments are private, the reality is that the public nature of social media can lead to unforeseen consequences.

Given this context, we expect our employees to exercise sound judgment when posting on social media, both during and outside of work hours. It is crucial for all interactions to uphold the reputation and values of Barrio Legado. Communications that are insulting, demeaning, or offensive to Barrio Legado, its guests, employees, affiliates, or suppliers will not be tolerated. Employees should remain mindful that their online activities can reflect upon the organization as a whole, and we trust that they will act accordingly to foster a positive and respectful online environment.

COMPANY PROPERTY

All property belonging to Barrio Legado should be returned to its designated location before your departure. Staff members are kindly reminded that removing Barrio Legado's property from the premises is not permitted. If you have been provided with any equipment or supplies during your time with us, we appreciate your cooperation in returning these items promptly at the conclusion of your employment.

INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY

All employees are required to uphold stringent confidentiality standards regarding any and all information related to the company. It is imperative that employees recognize the sensitivity of the information they encounter throughout their employment, and are committed to maintaining its confidentiality. Confidential information encompasses a wide array of materials, including but not limited to the company's financial data, unannounced products, services, and events, as well as specifics related to recipes, menu development, guest information, passwords, and strategic plans. Additionally, our internal policies and procedures are considered confidential. Employees are expected to refrain from disclosing any of this information to unauthorized individuals or entities.

In circumstances where disclosure of confidential information is mandated by law, employees are permitted to disclose such information; however, they must first notify Barrio Legado prior to any such action. This protocol is designed to safeguard the company's interests while complying with legal obligations. All employees are urged to familiarize themselves with these confidentiality requirements and to approach any uncertainties regarding disclosure with diligence and care.

MEDIA AND PUBLIC COMMUNICATION

In the event of an emergency, it is vital to maintain a cohesive and accurate flow of information to the media and the public. Therefore, all communication in such circumstances will be managed exclusively by our Public Relations Department. Employees are reminded that speaking with the media regarding any aspect of a Barrio Legado property is strictly prohibited unless authorized. Should there be any questions or uncertainties related to this protocol, employees are encouraged to consult their Manager for guidance.

As part of our marketing initiatives, employees of Barrio Legado acknowledge and grant the company, its affiliates, and its employees the right to take photographs for promotional purposes. This includes the authority to copyright, print, and publish any images captured. Employees should be aware that their participation is entirely voluntary and that they will not receive any form of compensation for their involvement in Barrio Legado's marketing materials or publications.

PERFORMANCE MANAGEMENT

PERFORMANCE REVIEWS

Performance reviews are an important opportunity to discuss both strengths and areas for improvement. They help employees and employers gain a clearer understanding of any challenges an individual may be facing. This process is a valuable time to set goals, provide constructive feedback, and gather insights for the management team. Formal performance reviews will take place after your initial three months and will continue on an annual basis. Following each year of employment, all staff members will be encouraged to complete a self-assessment, after which management will share an overall evaluation.

DISCIPLINARY POLICY

When the management team of Barrio Legado identifies that an employee's performance or behavior does not align with the Company's standards for their position, it is essential to initiate corrective action promptly to facilitate the improvement of the identified issues.

DISCIPLINARY PROCEDURE

Barrio Legado is committed to fostering a work environment that operates on a foundation of clear policies, procedures, and core values. To effectively uphold these standards, the company implements a gradual and progressive disciplinary system designed to promote adherence and facilitate corrective actions. This approach allows for a measured response to infractions that takes into account the severity of the situation and the employee's previous behavior. The disciplinary actions available include verbal warnings, written warnings, suspension without pay, and, in extreme cases, termination.

The first step in addressing minor infractions is the verbal warning, which serves as an initial corrective measure. In instances where an employee has violated company policies, a manager on duty or supervisor will engage in a constructive dialogue with the individual, detailing the specifics of the incident and providing an opportunity for the employee to share their perspective. This interaction not only clarifies expectations moving forward but also ensures that the employee understands the necessity of adhering to company standards.

Should a situation necessitate further action, or if the infraction is deemed more severe, a written warning may be issued. This formalized document outlines the nature of the violation, the agreed-upon action plan for improvement, and provides the employee with space to voice any concerns. Signatures from both the supervisor and the employee are required to acknowledge receipt of the warning, though refusal to sign does not invalidate the disciplinary action. For more serious or repeated violations, Barrio Legado may resort to suspension without pay, during which a meeting with management will occur to discuss the terms and expectations for the employee's return.

In cases where corrective measures fail to yield positive results, termination may be considered as a last resort. This process will involve a thorough meeting with the employee and management to transparently discuss the reasons for termination and the specifics of the separation. Throughout this entire disciplinary framework, each incident is meticulously documented and retained in the employee's file to ensure a clear and comprehensive record of the employee's conduct over time. Management retains the discretion to adjust the disciplinary process as deemed appropriate based on the context and severity of each infraction.

TERMINATION

At Barrio Legado, we acknowledge that the termination of employment is a natural and sometimes necessary aspect of the hospitality industry. Various circumstances can lead to such outcomes, including resignation, discharge, and layoffs. In all cases, we are committed to adhering to principles of fairness and transparency throughout the termination process.

Resignation: voluntary employment termination initiated by the employee.

Discharge: involuntary employment termination initiated by Barrio Legado.

Layoff: involuntary employment termination initiated by Barrio Legado because of an organizational change.

When termination is initiated by Barrio Legado, we will ensure that it follows the principles of progressive discipline, unless the situation involves serious offenses that warrant immediate termination. Employees will be provided with written notification detailing the reasons for their termination, along with any accrued compensation, including salary, paid leave, overtime pay, and severance pay up until the date of termination. It is important to note that certain conditions may affect entitlement to termination notice and severance pay. Employees who reject reasonable alternative employment offers or have engaged in willful misconduct or neglect of duty may not be eligible for these benefits.

For employees who choose to resign, Barrio Legado fully respects their decision and wishes them success in future endeavors. We kindly ask for a written notice of at least two weeks to be provided to a manager, allowing for a smoother transition. Prior to an employee's departure, we conduct an unbiased exit interview aimed at understanding their experiences during their tenure at Barrio Legado. This feedback is invaluable in our continuous efforts to improve the workplace environment and uphold the highest standards of hospitality service.

LETTER OF EMPLOYMENT

Occasionally, employees may require a letter of employment. If you find yourself in need of one, please reach out to your manager, who will be happy to assist you in preparing the letter. If there are specific details that need to be included, kindly inform your manager in advance.

REFERENCES

If you require a reference, we encourage you to discuss this with your manager and inform them of the context in which you would like to use their reference.

HEALTH AND SAFETY

HEALTH AND SAFETY STATEMENT

Barrio Legado is steadfast in its commitment to fostering a robust safety program that safeguards the well-being of its staff, protects its property, and ensures the public is shielded from potential accidents. The responsibility for upholding the company's safety initiatives lies with every employee, including management, emphasizing a culture where accountability and active participation are paramount. It is crucial that all workers engage fully in safety practices on a daily basis and across all job functions, fostering an environment where safety is woven into the fabric of workplace operations.

Management will promote employee participation in the safety program and provide essential resources, including appropriate equipment, comprehensive training, and clear procedural guidelines. Employees are encouraged to take ownership of their safety responsibilities by adhering to established protocols and actively seeking opportunities to enhance safety measures. The overarching goal is to establish an injury and accident-free workplace, a target that can be accomplished through dedicated efforts in continuous safety and loss control initiatives.

Barrio Legado is fully committed to implementing every reasonable precaution to protect all workers, in accordance with Occupational Health and Safety legislation. This commitment involves maintaining a safe and healthy workplace by enacting an Occupational Health and Safety program that aligns with industry standards and complies with relevant legislation. Managers and supervisors hold the specific responsibility of ensuring that the health and safety of workers under their supervision is prioritized. This includes ensuring that machinery and equipment are safe for use, that workplace practices adhere to legislative requirements, and that all policies and procedures are followed diligently.

Each employee is responsible for their own health and safety and also for that of their co-workers, guests, and any affiliates associated with Barrio Legado. Compliance with established workplace practices and procedures is essential in creating a safe environment for all. By embracing and practicing health and safety principles in every aspect of work, employees contribute to the well-being of themselves and their peers, reinforcing Barrio Legado's commitment to a culture of safety and respect in the workplace.

RESPONSIBILITIES

It is everyone's responsibility to create a safe and healthy workspace. It is the responsibility of everyone to:

- Make all reasonable efforts to protect their own health and safety, and that of workers and other persons at, or near, the workplace
- Co-operate with the employer and co-workers to protect the health and safety of everyone in the workplace
- Use or wear all necessary PPE and safety devices according to manufacturers instructions and training
- Follow safe work practices and procedures
- Immediately report hazards to the supervisor or employer
- Not carry out work, or operate a tool, appliance or equipment, where a present or potential hazard creates imminent danger to themselves or others
- Participate in training and hazard assessments, where it is offered

EMPLOYEE RIGHTS

Workers in Newfoundland and Labrador (and across Canada)are granted three rights as part of the internal responsibility system that helps to make sure that everyone at the workplace takes responsibility for their own health and safety, and the health and safety of others.

1. The Right To Know
2. The Right To Participate
3. The Right To Refuse Unsafe Work

The right to know ensures that employees are informed about both existing and potential hazards in the workplace. It also includes their right to understand the measures in place to manage these risks. To support this, employees are provided with education, training, and communication about these hazards, alongside ongoing guidance from their supervisors.

The right to participate ensures that employees are actively engaged in identifying and addressing occupational health and safety issues. This involvement can take various forms, such as reporting hazards, sharing concerns, or offering suggestions for improvement with supervisors, the OHS Committee, or the Workplace Health and Safety Representative. Additionally, joining the OHS Committee or serving as a WHS Representative are also great ways to contribute positively to the safety culture of Barrio Legado.

Employees have the right to decline tasks they perceive as hazardous to their own health and safety, or to that of others in the workplace. It's important to exercise this right responsibly and not to misuse it without valid justification.

Basics Rights of Workers in Canada

Know

You have the right to know what hazards are present in your workplace

Participate

You have the right to participate in keeping your workplace healthy and safe

Refuse

You have the right to refuse work that you believe to be dangerous to yourself and others

RIGHT TO REFUSE UNSAFE WORK

Where an employee wishes to use their right to refuse unsafe work, the following three step procedure must be used:

1. Immediately report the precise conditions of the refusal to the supervisor or manager. If the refusal is resolved to the employee's satisfaction, the employee must return to work. If the refusal remains unresolved, proceed to the next step.
2. The supervisor or manager reports the unresolved work refusal to the OHS Committee or WHS Representative for investigation. The employer or employee should notify OHS Division of the refusal. If the refusal is resolved to the employee's satisfaction, the employee must return to work. If the refusal remains unsolved, proceed to the next step.
3. The employer or employee must immediately report the unresolved work refusal to OHS Division for investigation and resolution. When the report is made orally, it must be followed up in writing within five days.

Where there has been a refusal to work by one employee, that same work cannot be reassigned to another employee unless the other employee has been informed of the refusal and the reason for that refusal.

While a work refusal is under investigation, the employer may reassign the employee to other work that is reasonably equivalent to their normal work. The employee must accept the reassignment until they are able to return to the work first assigned.

While the employee is using their right to refuse, the employer must pay the employee the same wages or salary they would have received if they had continued their usual tasks. If the employee is not reassigned other work, the employer must pay the same wages or salary and grant the same benefits as if the employee had continued to do work. Reassignment of work in this situation is not considered to be discriminatory action.

The employer may not take discriminatory actions against employees by dismissing them, deducting wages, salary or other benefits, or by through other disciplinary actions against them for reasonably refusing work under their rights. Where disciplinary action is taken against workers, that action or dismissal will be considered discriminatory, unless there is evidence to show otherwise.

OCCUPATIONAL HEALTH AND SAFETY COMMITTEE

An Occupational Health and Safety Committee is a critical component of workplace safety in environments where 20 or more workers are employed. The establishment of this committee is mandated by regulations to ensure the continuous monitoring and enhancement of the health, safety, and welfare of all employees within the workplace. The composition of the committee is designed to facilitate balanced representation, comprising a minimum of two and a maximum of twelve members, with at least half of these members representing the workers, thereby ensuring that the voices of those directly affected by workplace conditions are heard and considered.

The OHS Committee is tasked with a range of responsibilities to identify and address potential hazards within the workplace. This includes conducting regular workplace inspections as required by regulations, where the committee can assess the safety of the environment and identify aspects that may contribute to health risks. The committee engages with various stakeholders providing recommendations aimed at improving safety standards and ensuring compliance with established regulations. The committee also receives and addresses complaints from employees regarding health and safety concerns, creating open dialogue and developing a culture of safety within the workplace. They are to maintain meticulous records of complaints and their resolution to ensure accountability and transparency in addressing health and safety matters.

Regular meetings, held at least once every three months, provide a structured opportunity for committee members to review progress, discuss concerns, and strategize on effective health and safety initiatives. By collaborating with regulatory authorities, such as the assistant deputy minister or designated officers, the OHS Committee actively contributes to a safer working environment, reinforcing the commitment to uphold the health, safety, and welfare of all employees.

REPORTING AN INJURY AT WORK

A workplace injury is an injury that occurs at work, on company property, or on company business that requires medical treatment and may or may not require time away from work.

In the event of an injury, the employee receiving the appropriate care is the priority. Following that, the manager or supervisor must gather details about the incident, including what transpired, where it occurred, and the names of any witnesses. Advise the employee to report the incident to their healthcare provider and obtain copies of all necessary documentation.

The employer must complete form 7 to report the injury to Workplace NL within 3 days of injury. The employee must also fill out form 6. They can do so through MyWorkplaceNL or they can physically complete the form and provide to the manager or supervisor to submit. Once all forms are submitted, an Intake Adjudicator will review the claim.

WORKPLACE COMPENSATION INSURANCE

Workplace compensation is an employer-funded program designed to offer wage replacement and medical benefits to employees who are injured or, in the unfortunate event of a fatality, their survivors. This program operates as a no-fault system, ensuring that injured workers receive compensation without the need to demonstrate employer negligence, while also safeguarding employers from potential lawsuits. WorkplaceNL is dedicated to providing both short- and long-term benefits to injured workers and their families, ensuring support during challenging times.

EARLY AND SAFE RETURN TO WORK

The early and safe return to work process helps workers continue working after an injury or to return to work in a safe and timely manner after taking time off. During this period, Barrio Legado will support employees in their recovery while they receive medical treatment for their work-related injuries. Returning to work after an injury may necessitate adjustments to their duties or working hours. Additionally, the employee might require specific equipment or tools to facilitate their reintegration into the workplace. Both the employer and employee share the important responsibility of promoting a timely and safe return to appropriate and available employment opportunities.

MENTAL HEALTH IN THE WORKPLACE

Mental health disorders continue to be a significant concern in Canada, impacting individuals and organizations alike. The importance of addressing mental health issues cannot be overstated, as failure to do so can lead to serious short-term and long-term consequences. Research shows that employees who face high levels of stress, lack control over their work processes, and do not receive adequate support are at an increased risk for a variety of health problems, including cardiovascular diseases, musculoskeletal disorders, and various mental health issues. In extreme cases, these factors can even contribute to a higher risk of mortality. At Barrio Legado, we believe that fostering a positive workplace culture that prioritizes mental well-being can significantly enhance an organization's dynamics. When employees feel valued and supported, it not only increases their engagement but also elevates their overall productivity. A nurturing work environment promotes open communication and collaboration, empowering teams to excel together.

Several key factors can put mental health at risk within the workplace. Excessive workloads, unclear role expectations, lack of managerial support, and toxic environments characterized by bullying or harassment can all significantly undermine employee morale. By recognizing these risks, we can take proactive steps to mitigate them.

INCIDENT REPORTS

A workplace incident report is an official document that captures details about injuries, illnesses, near misses, or property damage that occur on the job. This report plays a crucial role in safety, compliance, and risk management. To ensure the information is accurate, reports are to be filled out within 24 hours, documenting the who, what, when, and where of the incident. These reports are essential for maintaining legal and safety regulatory compliance, identifying potential hazards to prevent future incidents, and providing necessary information for insurance claims.

When completing the report, please ensure that you include the following essential details: the date and time of the incident, the precise location, the names of any injured parties and witnesses, a factual step-by-step account of what occurred, and any immediate actions taken, such as first aid or reporting. Additionally, please attach any relevant photos, sketches, or documents. If the injured party or any witnesses are not employed by the company, get their contact information in case they need to be contacted. After the incident, it is important to ensure that anyone injured receives appropriate medical attention, secure the scene to prevent further occurrences, and notify a supervisor or manager.

ANONYMOUS COMPLAINTS AND REPORTING

At Barrio Legado, we recognize that not all employees feel comfortable addressing incidents or concerns openly within the workplace. To create a safe and supportive environment, we offer various reporting forms tailored to address specific issues, such as violence, harassment, sexual harassment, or health and safety concerns. Employees can choose the report form that best suits their situation. All report forms and an anonymous drop box is situated outside of the office. This allows for a more discreet approach, where employees can submit a report anonymously knowing managers and owners are the only ones with access to these reports to respect your confidentiality.

We understand that anonymous complaints pose unique challenges, particularly when it comes to gathering sufficient information and following up on cases. However, it's important to us that all complaints, regardless of how they are submitted, are taken seriously and addressed appropriately. Serious and detailed allegations will be investigated in accordance with our internal policies, emphasizing the identification of patterns and the collection of available evidence. Our commitment to resolving these issues reflects our dedication to fostering a safe and respectful workplace for all.

For employees considering making an anonymous complaint, we encourage you to be as specific as possible. Providing detailed descriptions of the incidents including dates, times, and potential witnesses can significantly aid in our investigation. We advise against using unique vocabulary or specific anecdotes that could inadvertently reveal your identity if remaining anonymous is a priority. Please also keep in mind that, due to the nature of anonymous reporting, you may not receive direct feedback or updates regarding the investigation's progress or outcome. Rest assured, your voice matters, and we are here to listen and take appropriate action to ensure a safe and supportive work environment for everyone.

The suppression system will then initiate the alarm, so the fire can be subdued before it gets the opportunity to spread. The exhaust system is the ductwork that mechanically expels cooking vapours from the building.

MUSTER STATION

A muster station is a designated and secure outdoor location where employees, visitors, and contractors are required to gather during an emergency evacuation. Its primary purpose is to ensure the safety of all individuals by moving them away from immediate danger, allowing for an effective headcount, and minimizing confusion during critical situations such as fires, explosions, or natural disasters. You can find the specific location of our muster station in the health and safety manual as well as on the health and safety board.

FOOD SAFETY

Food safety is a critical concern in the restaurant industry, as it plays a vital role in protecting guests from illness-causing bacteria and pathogens. These microorganisms can lead to severe health issues, legal repercussions, and even the closure of a business. By implementing rigorous food safety protocols, such as proper hygiene practices, temperature control, and effective sanitization, we can ensure our guests trust our service, enhance our restaurant's reputation, and guarantee compliance with health regulations.

Key practices in food safety include regular cleaning of surfaces, maintaining proper food storage temperatures, thoroughly cooking food to eliminate harmful bacteria, and preventing cross-contamination between raw and ready-to-eat items. Unfortunately, employees in the food service industry may often perform these fundamental tasks without fully understanding their significance. This lack of awareness can cause these essential practices to become mundane, leading to neglect and, ultimately, potential health risks for guests.

Most foodborne illnesses are preventable with the right safety measures in place. By prioritizing practices that prevent cross-contamination and other food-related issues, we can ensure guest safety and protect our operation. In Canada, compliance with food safety regulations is a legal requirement, and neglecting these laws can have serious consequences. Simple errors including inadequate handwashing, improper time and temperature control, and insufficient cleaning, have been linked to some of the country's most significant foodborne illness outbreaks.

As food allergies become more prevalent, restaurant staff must be vigilant in preventing life-threatening allergic reactions. Ignorance of food safety measures, especially regarding allergens, is not an acceptable excuse for any establishment.

Regular handwashing with soap and water, particularly before handling food and after touching raw meats or using the restroom, is essential. Cleaning cutting boards, utensils, and countertops after contact with raw meat is also vital to avoid cross-contamination. Cooking all meats, poultry, and eggs to the correct internal temperatures, ensuring hot foods remain above 60°C (140°F) and properly chilling leftovers are key practices that every employee should consistently adhere to. By using separate cutting boards for raw meats and fruits or vegetables, and by storing raw meats below ready-to-eat foods in the refrigerator, we can further safeguard our guests' health and well-being.

Workplace Harassment and Violence

Any action, conduct or comment that offends, humiliates, or causes physical or mental harm.

Rights and responsibilities

Every worker has the right to a safe workplace free from harassment and violence.

Employers are responsible for creating a safe workplace. They should know the legal requirements for workplace harassment and violence in their jurisdiction.

It is an employer's duty to investigate, record, report and resolve all incidents of harassment and violence.

Harassment and violence can affect any worker in any industry. It can include:

- bullying
- threatening behaviours
- physical attacks
- property destruction
- intimidating actions
- verbal abuse
- unfair treatment

Commit to a workplace that is free of harassment and violence

- Assess workplace risks, like culture and activities, and outside factors, like customers or family violence.
- Educate everyone on harassment and violence, including how to respond, how to report incidents and what supports are available.
- Foster a respectful workplace by modelling cooperative, inclusive and fair behaviour.
- Implement clear policies and procedures for minimizing the risks of harassment and violence and for responding to incidents. Outline and assign responsibilities, and communicate policies to all workers.
- Outline the procedure for resolving incidents, ensuring fairness and confidentiality.

If you are being harassed, think you might have been harassed, or have witnessed harassment, report it.

WHIMIS

WHMIS, or the Workplace Hazardous Materials Information System, represents Canada's national standard for hazard communication concerning hazardous products utilized, stored, or managed within the workplace. This system integrates chemical labeling, Safety Data Sheets (SDSs) and worker training to enhance safety and prevent injuries and illnesses by delivering essential information about hazardous materials. It encompasses standardized labels, comprehensive Safety Data Sheets, and structured employee education programs. WHMIS has aligned with the worldwide hazard communication system known as GHS - the Globally Harmonized System of Classification and Labelling of Chemicals.

The main components of WHMIS are:

1. Employee Training: This is often called your Right to Know. Your employer must provide you with training, instruction, and information about any potentially harmful material you may come into contact with at work
2. Hazard identification and product classification
3. Labels: Workers must be able to immediately see that a hazard is present. Therefore, all chemicals that are controlled under WHMIS and in their original containers must carry a WHMIS warning label that includes WHMIS warning symbols
3. Safety Data Sheet (SDS) Suppliers must provide detailed information to employers and workers about hazardous WHMIS products used in Canadian workplaces.

RECOGNIZING HAZARDOUS MATERIALS

Hazardous materials are substances, solid, liquid, or gas, that present significant risks to health, safety, property, or the environment throughout their production, handling, or transportation processes. Suppliers are required to evaluate their products against the criteria outlined in the Hazardous Products Regulations. Should a product satisfy any criteria for a hazard class, it will be classified as a WHMIS-regulated hazardous product. All hazardous products must be appropriately labeled in accordance with the Hazardous Products Regulations, and a corresponding safety data sheet must be provided to the purchaser at the time of sale.

The hazard class and category are detailed in Section 2 (Hazard Identification)of the Safety Data Sheet and are also indicated on the supplier label. Each hazard class or category is required to incorporate the specified pictograms and other labeling elements to convey the associated hazards and the necessary precautionary measures. Employers and employees utilize the information provided on the label and in the Safety Data Sheet to ensure safe practices for the usage, handling, storage, and disposal of the hazardous product.

WHMIS HAZARDOUS MATERIAL LABELS

In Canada, WHMIS legislation requires that products used in the workplace that meet the criteria to be classified as hazardous products be labelled. Labels are the first alert to the user about the major hazards associated with that product, and outline the basic precautions or safety steps that should be taken.

There are two main types of WHMIS labels:

- Supplier labels - The suppliers of industrial chemicals controlled under WHMIS must attach a supplier label on the container before the material is shipped to the workplace.
- Workplace labels - Workplace labels must be put on any hazardous chemical transferred from its original containers into the new one. A workplace label is required when a hazardous product is produced at the workplace and used in that workplace, a hazardous product is decanted into another container, or a supplier label becomes lost or illegible.

Workplace labels are not required if it is going to be used immediately. If the product is not used right away or if more than one person will be in control of the product, a full workplace label is required.

SUPPLIER LABEL REQUIREMENTS

Supplier labels must be in both official languages of Canada. They may be bilingual or available as two labels, one each in English and French.

The supplier label must include the following information:

1. Product identifier - the brand name, chemical name, common name, generic name or trade name of the hazardous product.
2. Initial supplier identifier - the name, address and telephone number of either the Canadian manufacturer or the Canadian importer*.
3. Pictogram(s) - hazard symbol within a red "square set on one of its points".
4. Signal word - a word used to alert the reader to a potential hazard and to indicate the severity of the hazard.
5. Hazard statement(s) - standardized phrases which describe the nature of the hazard posed by a hazardous product.
6. Precautionary statement(s) - standardized phrases that describe measures to be taken to minimize or prevent adverse effects resulting from exposure to a hazardous product or resulting from improper handling or storage of a hazardous product.
7. Supplemental label information - some supplemental label information is required based on the classification of the product. For example, the label for a mixture containing ingredients with unknown toxicity in amounts higher than or equal to 1% must include a statement indicating the percent of the ingredient or ingredients with unknown toxicity. Labels may also include supplementary information about precautionary actions, hazards not yet included in the GHS, physical state, or route of exposure. This information must not contradict or detract from the standardized information.

WORKPLACE LABEL REQUIREMENTS

In general, a workplace label requires the following information:

- Product name (matching the SDS product name)
- Safe handling precautions may include pictograms or other supplier label information.
- A reference to the SDS

HAZARD STATEMENT

Hazard statements are brief, standardized sentences that tell you more about the exact hazard of the product. The statements are short, but they describe the most significant hazards of the product. The wording of the hazard statement helps to describe the degree of the hazard.

Examples of hazard statements are:

- Extremely flammable gas.
- Contains gas under pressure; may explode if heated.
- Fatal if inhaled.
- Causes eye irritation.
- May cause cancer.

PRECAUTIONARY STATEMENT

Precautionary statements provide advice on how to minimize or prevent adverse effects resulting from exposure to a hazardous product or from improper storage or handling of a hazardous product. These statements can include instructions about storage, handling, first aid, personal protective equipment, and emergency measures. Like the hazard statements, the wording of precautionary statements is standardized and harmonized. Precautionary statements will be consistent with the degree of the hazard associated with the product.

There are five types of precautionary statements:

- General.
- Prevention.
- Response (including first aid)
- Storage.
- Disposal.

Examples of precautionary statements are:

- Keep the container tightly closed.
- Wear protective gloves/protective clothing/eye protection/face protection.
- If exposed or concerned: Get medical advice/attention.
- Fight fire remotely due to the risk of explosion.
- Protect from sunlight.

SIGNAL WORD

A signal word is a prompt that alerts you about the degree or level of hazard of the product. There are only two signal words used. "Danger" is used for high-risk hazards, while "Warning" is used for less severe hazards. If a signal word is assigned to a hazard class and category, it must be shown on the label and listed in section 2 (Hazards Identification)of the safety data sheet.

WHMIS Labels

1 Product Identifier

2 Hazard Pictograms

Hazard pictograms, determined by the hazard classification of the product. In some cases, no pictogram is required.

3 Signal Words

"Danger" or "Warning" are used to emphasize hazards and indicate the severity of the hazard.

4 Hazard Statements

Brief standardized statements of all hazards based on the hazard classification of the product.

5 Precautionary Statements

These statements describe recommended measures to minimize or prevent adverse effects from exposure to the product, including protective equipment and emergency measures.

6 Supplemental information (if required)

May be required based on classification. This information must not contradict or detract from the standardized information.

7 Supplier Identifier

The company which made, packaged, sold or imported the product, and is responsible for the label and SDS.

8 Safe Handling Precautions

May include pictograms or other supplier label information.

HAZARD GROUPS

WHMIS applies to two major groups of hazards: physical and health. Each hazard group includes hazard classes that have specific hazardous properties.

- Physical hazards group: based on the product's physical or chemical properties, such as flammability, reactivity, or corrosivity to metals.
- Health hazards group: based on the ability of the product to cause a health effect, such as eye irritation, respiratory sensitization (may cause allergy or asthma symptoms or breathing difficulties if inhaled) or carcinogenicity (may cause cancer)

HAZARD CLASS

Hazard classes serve to categorize products with similar characteristics. The majority of these classes are aligned with the Globally Harmonized System (GHS)and will be utilized internationally by all countries that have adopted GHS standards. Additionally, certain hazard classes are specific to the Workplace Hazardous Materials Information System (WHMIS)

Physical Hazard Classes

- Flammable gases (including pyrophoric gases and chemically unstable gases)
- Aerosols
- Oxidizing gases
- Gases under pressure
- Flammable liquids
- Flammable solids
- Self-reactive substances and mixtures
- Pyrophoric liquids
- Pyrophoric solids
- Self-heating substances and mixtures
- Substances and mixtures which, in contact with water, emit flammable gases
- Oxidizing liquids
- Oxidizing solids
- Organic peroxides
- Corrosive to metals
- Combustible dusts
- Simple asphyxiants
- Physical hazards not otherwise classified
- Chemicals under pressure

Health Hazard Classes

- Acute toxicity
- Skin corrosion/irritation
- Serious eye damage/eye irritation
- Respiratory or skin sensitization
- Germ cell mutagenicity
- Carcinogenicity
- Reproductive toxicity
- Specific target organ toxicity - single exposure
- Specific target organ toxicity - repeated exposure
- Aspiration hazard
- Biohazardous infectious materials
- Health hazards not otherwise classified

SAFETY DATA SHEET (SDS)

Safety Data Sheets (SDSs) are comprehensive documents that detail the hazards associated with a product and offer guidance on safety precautions. Typically authored by the manufacturer or supplier, SDSs are required to be provided by suppliers of hazardous products at the time of sale. Safety Data Sheets (SDSs) offer comprehensive hazard information regarding products, exceeding the details provided on labels. They serve as a vital resource for workplaces and employees concerning the products utilized. It is essential to consult this information to identify the associated hazards and adhere to the recommended safe handling and emergency procedures to ensure the protection of workers from these hazards. SDSs tell users what the hazards of the product are, how to use the product safely, what to expect if the recommendations are not followed, how to recognize symptoms of exposure, and what to do if emergencies occur.

UNDERSTANDING SAFETY DATA SHEETS

SDS's might be difficult to understand because they use quite a bit of technical language. It is important not to be overwhelmed by this.

SDS's will have the following information:

- | | |
|---|-------------------------------------|
| 1. Identification | 9. Physical and Chemical Properties |
| 2. Hazard Identification | 10. Stability and Reactivity |
| 3. Composition/Information on Ingredients | 11. Toxicological Information |
| 4. First Aid Measures | 12. Ecological Information |
| 5. Fire-Fighting Measures | 13. Disposal Considerations |
| 6. Accidental Release Measures | 14. Transport Information |
| 7. Handling and Storage | 15. Regulatory Information |
| 8. Exposure Controls/Personal Protection | 16. Other Information |

PICTOGRAMS

Pictograms are graphic images that immediately show the user of a hazardous product what type of hazard is present. With a quick glance, you can see, for example, that the product is flammable or that it might be a health hazard. Most pictograms have a distinctive red "square set on one of its points" border. Inside this border is a symbol that represents the potential hazard. Together, the symbol and the border are referred to as a pictogram. Pictograms are assigned to specific hazard classes or categories.

HOW CHEMICALS ENTER THE BODY

In order for a chemical to harm a person's health, it must first come into contact with or enter the body, and it must have some biological effect on the body. There are four major routes by which a chemical may enter the body:

- Inhalation (breathing)
- Skin or eye contact
- Swallowing (ingestion or eating)
- Injection (skin penetration)

Breathing in contaminated air is the most common way that workplace chemicals enter the body. Some chemicals, when contacted, can pass through the skin into the bloodstream. The eyes may also be a route of entry. Usually, however, only very small quantities of chemicals in the workplace enter the body through the eyes. Workplace chemicals may be swallowed unintentionally if contaminated hands are not washed before the worker touches food or cigarettes, or if the items are contaminated directly. For this reason, workers should not drink, eat, or smoke in areas where they may be exposed to chemicals.

HOW CHEMICALS HARM THE BODY

Chemicals pose a risk to human health through various exposure routes, including inhalation, dermal contact, ingestion, and injection. Their effects can vary significantly, leading to issues ranging from immediate irritation to long-term health conditions such as cancer, organ failure, and hormonal disruption. These substances can interfere with biological processes by functioning as toxins, asphyxiants, or endocrine disruptors.

Key Mechanisms of Harm

- Target Organ Damage: Chemicals can poison specific organs, such as the liver, kidneys, brain, and lungs.
- Endocrine Disruption: Substances like phthalates and PFAS interfere with natural hormones, causing reproductive issues, diabetes, and developmental delays.
- Irritation and Corrosion: Acids, bases, and solvents can cause immediate tissue destruction, including skin burns, eye damage, and lung inflammation.
- Carcinogenesis and Mutagenesis: Chemicals like asbestos and benzene can cause cancer and damage DNA over long-term exposure.
- Asphyxiation: Some compounds restrict oxygen supply to tissues.

The extent of damage is influenced by the dose, duration of exposure, and the specific toxicity of the chemical involved. Although the liver functions to detoxify these substances, excessive or prolonged exposure may surpass its natural protective capabilities.

How Chemicals

Enter the Body

Inhalation

Chemicals in the air can be breathed in and can cause harm to the body.

Skin contact

Some chemicals injure the skin directly, or can be absorbed into the body through skin.

Eye contact

Contact with some chemicals can cause injury to the eyes.

Ingestion

Chemicals can enter the body by eating or drinking contaminated food, or by touching a chemical or contaminated object and then touching your mouth, nose, or eyes with unwashed hands.

Injection

Sharp objects can puncture the skin and inject chemicals or pathogens into the body.

Chemicals may be harmful to your health.

Understand the hazards and take precautions to protect yourself.
